

Paul

Video transcript

Paul Havron, I'm the current Business Manager for Ships and Weapons.

We look after the Royal Navy, predominantly and that is somewhere I spent a good while myself and I know that we contribute and sort out some of their difficult solutions that makes their life easier and gives the Royal Navy the edge when they are doing their job.

People in Frazer-Nash, I think, are very proactive; they are always willing to help for the good of the project and the customer. That is what makes us stand out amongst all others - they all work together. What I really like is when I go to our customers and they say without fail, pretty much, Frazer-Nash has a great reputation in the market place for delivering quality work and that's why they like working with us