

David

Video transcript

My name is David McNaught, I am a Group Leader for Technology Management.

My group delivers Systems Engineering consultancy to a variety of clients both local here in Glasgow and further afield within the UK.

Working with a committed team of individual is one of the great things about working for Frazer-Nash.

There's nothing like receiving a fresh problem from a client, something they are really struggling with and pulling together a team to deal with it so looking at people with really deep specialist expertise that is applied to a very niche area and pulling that together and kind of weaving that together into a complete solution for our client.